

ACH featured on Sam FM Bristol News

After ACH's Bristol support team made their radio debut in November on Bradley Stoke Radio, we were delighted when we were asked if we would like to speak to one of the South West's most popular radio stations: Sam FM Bristol.

Speaking with news reporter Alice Bell, our very own Chief Executive Fuad Mahamed spoke passionately about the increased need for housing over winter in order to support vulnerable refugees, homeless and other displaced people throughout Bristol. Fuad also made special mention of our 'rethinking refugee' social media campaign which is steadily growing awareness as we encourage the public to move towards a positive perception of refugees.

The ACH news bulletin was aired multiple times and attracted a spread of interest. We are extremely grateful to Sam FM for taking an interest in the work we do and giving us an opportunity to introduce ourselves to a wider audience. In 2016 we are keen to develop our press relations even further as these appearances can truly make a difference for our tenants.

If you would like to help spread the word about ACH and the important work we do please get in touch with a member of our Communications team who would be more than happy to chat:
