Last month we told you that we'd been nominated for a Voscur. The Voscur's are Bristol's Social Impact Awards, celebrating the fantastic work of Bristol's voluntary, community and social enterprise sector. This year, the awards were presented by Sherrie Eugene-Hart and Bristol Mayor, Marvin Rees.

And we're super excited to let you know that on the night we were Joint Winners of the Batook Pandya Award for Inclusion, along with the Welcome Committee. In memory of Batook Pandya MBE, director of SARI (Stand Against Racism & Inequality), this Award is for an organisation or group that recognises, promotes and celebrates diversity and inclusion. We are particularly pleased to win this award as Batook was such an important member of the local community, campaigning fearlessly against racial intolerance and discrimination, an inspiration to us all.
