

BBC Interview on ESOL provision

Article by:

Matthew Rogers

Marketing & Communications Officer | ACH Bristol

On 19th January 2017 we were featured on BBC Points West, as part of a piece the importance of language skills to refugee integration.

The interview was filmed at our training room in Bristol, and featured our ESOL tutor, Tom, and some of the learners on our ESOL class. Tom spoke with Dickon Hooper from BBC Points West about how learning English is key to enabling refugees to integrate and find work. The piece also featured MP Thangam Debbonaire speaking about language provision for refugees, and how intensive, full-time English classes would be more effective than the current provision.

Click here to watch the video - <https://youtu.be/8c2Of79P5Qw>