

BBC features

February has been a very exciting month for Ashley Community Housing, we had two very exciting interviews with BBC radio Bristol and BBC Points West regarding the work that we do with refugees within the Bristol area. Our CEO Fuad Mohammed spoke with incredible composure and providing some important myth-busters for the radio, our learners and tenants were shown working hard within our branch on television.

From both of these appearances we've had some amazing positive feedback from the local community and further afield. This feedback shows just how vital our role is that we play as a company, to provide resettlement services for those most at need. Many thanks to the BBC for both of the features!