October's been a busy month for us at ACH, as we've been promoting our services at business shows in the South West.

On 4th-5th of October, we exhibited at the South Gloucestershire Business Show, a new event this year which celebrated the diversity and strength of South Gloucestershire's businesses, people and community. It was a great chance to make new connections and engage with other businesses in the region.

The next week, on the 11th, we were at the Business Showcase South West. This is the largest free business event in the South West of England, and with over 275 exhibition stands it provided an impressive insight into the extensive range of businesses in the area.

At both shows, we spoke to a variety of people about the work we do and the new services we are offering to businesses. It was interesting to hear from others, and to find out more about how we can work with them in the future.

Our offerings to businesses include recruitment solutions to increase diversity and address skills gaps. We offer tailored pre-selection and training courses to fill vacancies for new staff, including apprentices and interns. We also provide training and apprenticeships for existing staff.
